Blanka has chosen to work in an ecological farm as she cares about nature and environment issues. Here she can bring her dog with her while taking care of all the important things in the farm.

She likes hiking in the beautiful countryside of Hessen or helping out in a place for homeless animals. Blanka also has a strong relationship to her grandmother – a woman whom with her garden and dedication to nature - probably was the one starting the granddaughter's own interest.

We follow her selling groceries at the market in Dresden – the capital of Hessen and Blanka shows us around this remarkable city that's been build up from scratch after being ruined in WW2 bombing raids that destroyed almost all the ancient centre of the city.
