Me Voilà! is a documentary. Our young collaborators invite us into their homes to meet their families, they introduce us to their friends and they show us where they live. We accompany them in their schools and workplaces, when they are practising their hobbies and spare time activities.

The viewers get a glimpse of life today in France, especially of young people's lives. Students around the world will understand how much we all have in common but also discover things that are "typically French." The six programmes will lead to a better understanding of France and arouse young people's interest in France and the French.

The language is unscripted but controlled.

All six programmes include footage from the area.
